The Abstract of Title Company of San Mateo County

Incorporated A. D. 1897
H. W. TAVERNER, MANAGER
Redwood City, Cal.

Abstracts of Title to all lands in the County of San Mateo.

This company is the only abstract concern possessing a property index or "Abstract Plant" of San Mateo county.

LARGEST ELECTRIC PLANT IN THE WORLD

The Great Western Power Company which will furnish electricity for the Southern Pacific in this county and elsewhere and will contribute to the lighting of cities around the bay, will open December 10. $10,000,000 have been expended upon the plant at Los Plumas on the Feather river where arrangements have been made to turn the river through a mountain and let a tremendous water power down upon the generating machinery. The current will be carried on well-protected and insulated steel masts 150 miles to the Cowell cement works which will make their start upon the arrival of the "essence".

When the plant is completed it will be the largest electric generating concern in the whole world. It will continuously produce 144,000 horse-power; the energy that it would take a vast herd of 144,000 horses to exert. How much that means may be inferred from the fact that the next biggest electric generating plant in the world is at Niagara Falls, where there are two plants of 50,000 horsepower each. This plant is nearly three times as big as Niagara's biggest. It is so big that it could furnish all the electric power needed to run the street cars, the factories, the elevators and all the electric lights within the entire city of San Francisco. The biggest power plant in the whole west is the California Gas and Electric station at Electra, which is capable of producing nearly 30,000 horsepower. The new one will be nearly five times as big. And the one at Electra overshadows anything of the kind in Europe Asia, Africa, South America or Australia.

RAISING CHICKENS.

Her Theory Was Right, but a Flaw Marred Her Practice.

"Yes, farming is all very easy," the farmer said. "Any city person could make a success of it at the first go-off. Mrs. Jack Frost took the farm next to mine one year. Being from the city, she thought she would show us country people a thing or two about real farming. She began on a chicken yard.

"It was a fine yard. Pretty soon a hundred eggs hatched out. There were half hens and half roosters. Mrs. Jack Frost, before sailing for Europe, separated the two sexes, and, killing all the roosters, she sent them to her friends. A fine lot of spring broilers they made. They were no bigger than squabs.

"But when Mrs. Jack Frost got back from Europe a strange sight her chicken yard presented. It was nothing but young roosters—young roosters, crowing, young roosters swaggering about, while here, with flying feathers and squawks and blood, a terrible fight went on, and there, disregarded by all, lay the corpses of brave birds slain in single combat. At sunrise you could hear the crowing of those roosters all over the county.

"Poor Mrs. Jack Frost understood the theory of chicken raising all right, only in separating the young birds she mistook the males for the females, and vice versa."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

WHEELBARROW TRAVEL.

A Common Method of Transportation In China.

"Probably more freight and more passengers are transported in China by the wheelbarrow than by any other land method," said a Hongkong man who is interested in the shipping trade in the far east.

"The wheelbarrow used in China differs from that used in America in the fact that the wheel is set in the center and thus supports practically the entire load, while the handles are supported in part by a strap or rope over the shoulders of the man who operates it.

"As a result the cooly in China will transport nearly half a ton on his wheel. Wheelbarrows are much used in the country, where the roads are but little developed, and I have heard that passengers sometimes make the entire trip from Shanghai to Pekin, a distance of 600 miles, by barrow.

"A two passenger barrow will make about twenty miles a day, and the cooly is content with a pay of about 20 cents a day or an average of about half a cent a mile for each passenger. On the level, well kept streets of the foreign quarters of such cities as Hongkong, Shanghai and Pekin the wheelbarrow cooly will struggle along with a load of six or even eight people."—Washington Herald.

CURIOSITIES OF DIET.

How Nature Adapts Food to Man and Man to Food.

GREAT VALUE OF CEREALS.

Why People Can Eat Bread at Every Meal Without Getting Tired of It. The Fruits of the Burning Tropics and the Fats of the Frozen Arctic.

Modern science has shown that nature provides food for mankind with marvelous care and foresight. The human system requires a certain amount of proteid daily to replace wornout muscle and tissue. Fish and meat supply this in large quantities. In hot climates, however, these spoil so quickly that their use is limited. Nature, as if to compensate for this, has given to certain tropical fruits a much larger quantity of proteid than northern fruits contain. Thus government analysis shows that figs have five units or calories to the ounce, dates two and five-tenths and bananas one and five-tenths. Apples have five-tenths, peaches nine-tenths and pears seven-tenths. Probably the figs and dates tested had lost part of their moisture, and some allowance should be made for this.

The Arab can, therefore, maintain his vigor on a diet chiefly plucked from trees. Henry M. Stanley and his white companions subsisted almost entirely on banana flour for two years in the African jungle. Their freedom from disease was in part attributed to the wholesomeness of this diet. The dried banana contains 20 per cent of proteid, about double that of ordinary wheat flour.

At the opening of the mango season in Jamaica many of the natives practically live on this fruit for two or three weeks. They fairly revel in it. An Englishman who was familiar with the science of diet could not understand how they could not only maintain their health on this fare, but actually grow sleek and fat. He knew that an effort to live on the fruits of his native country would result in weakness, sickness and eventual death. Chemical analysis showed, however, that the mango contained enough proteid to supply the bodily needs.

If nature has been thus kind in adapting food to man's uses, she has been equally so in adapting man to his food. You may have wondered why people can eat bread at every meal without tiring of it. The difficulty of eating one quail a day for thirty days is well known. Even such delicacies as asparagus and strawberries cause an aversion when served too frequently. Nature sends men a never failing appetite for cereals because they are altogether the most valuable of foods. They contain a considerable amount of proteid, their salts are of importance to the organism, they are readily digested when properly cooked, and they furnish a great deal of nourishment in small bulk.

Thus wheat flour, cornmeal, oatmeal (dry) and rice (dry) have more than 100 units to the ounce. Baked potatoes have 32.7 units, cabbage has 9.2, spinach 7, asparagus 6.5, apples 18.4, strawberries 11.4, spring chicken 19.5 and tenderloin of beef broiled 5.9. If a man tried to get even half of his nutrition from the coarse vegetables, which have a considerable indigestible residue, he would have to eat pounds of them daily, and his stomach would be sadly overburdened. Nature gives us the desire for a varied diet, and science shows that this is altogether the best for us.

In the arctic regions there is little vegetation. Man must live almost wholly on animal foods. Fish and meat would not suffice, because they contain only proteids. These would replace wornout muscle and tissue, but could not be burned in the body to generate heat and energy. Fats, however, consist of carbon and hydrogen, which are the chief components of the foods of vegetable origin and supply the fuel needed by the body. The polar animals have fat in abundance, but residents of the temperate and torrid zones can eat it only in limited quantities. To them the mere thought of chewing chunks of grease is nauseating.

The children of the frozen north, however, are endowed not only with the ability to eat and to digest large quantities of fat, but with a keen appetite for it. One who is sensitive to such impressions must turn away when he sees the natives of southern Alaska, the Thlinkits, swallowing seal oil flavored by salmon berries with the gusto of a boy over ice cream. The Eskimos, farther north, will eat blubber, slightly cooked in the flames, to an indefinite number of pounds.—New York Tribune.

THE GUILLOTINE.

It Was Not Invented by the Man Whose Name It Bears.

In a book published by Hector Fleischman in Germany the story of the origin of the instrument of execution which was named for Dr. Guillotin in the days of the reign of terror is flatly denied. "There is no truth in the story, so long believed," he says, "that the genial old physician invented the machine which was named for him and by means of which he is said to have lost his life shortly after its adoption. Guillotin, in keeping with the spirit of his time, proposed on Oct. 10, 1789, that all offenders, regardless of their birth or station, should be dealt with alike by the law, and six months later he proposed to the government that convicted murderers should be beheaded by means of a simple apparatus. The mechanism of which he and no one else had any idea at that time was spoken of as the 'simple apparatus' by the humorists of the day, and the phrase was used to make its proposer ridiculous, so that when a machine finally was adopted the wits of the time named it guillotine. The government, evidently recognizing the value of the suggestion, asked one Antoine Louis, a surgeon at the Salpetriere, to devise a machine and later gave a similar order to a carpenter by the name of Guidon, who offered to construct an instrument for decapitation for 5,660 livres. This was considered too high a price, and the contract was given to a German cabinetmaker by the name of Tobias Schmidt, who received 824 livres for the accepted model in 1792. Schmidt made guillotines for all the provinces, and the industry brought him a moderate fortune, which he proceeded to squander in Paris, while Dr. Guillotin, who never had anything to do with the making of a machine which bore his name, continued to practice his profession quietly and unostentatiously in Paris until he died there on March 26, 1814."

Bright Prospects.

"My dear," said the banker to his only daughter, "I have noticed a young man attired in a dress suit in the drawing room two or three evenings each week of late. What is his occupation?"

"He is at present unemployed, father," replied the fair girl, a dreamy, faraway look in her big blue eyes, "but he is thinking seriously of accepting a position of life companion to a young lady of means."

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

D. M. O'KEEFE, Editor and Proprietor

UNJUST CRITICISM

Of late a portion of the press of the county has been harshly critizing the present Board of Supervisors for the delay in building the new court house. While there has been some unnecessary delay the board is not wholly to blame. In order to comply with the law much time was consumed in advertising which has to be done in all public work.

After the destruction of the old building by the earthquake it took 30 days to advertise the sale of bonds to raise funds to build the structure. Then some time was spent in securing a purchaser for the bonds This done competitive plans were advertised for which took another thirty days. When the architects came before the board with their plans the supervisors necessarily had to spend much time in looking into the merits of each. The board could not make a selection without a thorough investigation. Having done this the plans of Glenn Allen were decided upon and adopted. The clerk then advertised a notice to contractors which took another thirty days. Several bids were received. The board believing that they were too high the clerk was instructed to readvertise. At the end of thirty days new bids were presented and the contract was awarded to the O Brien Construction Company for $160,000, eleven thousand dollars cheaper than the lowest bid received by the first call. The county had thus made $11,000 by readvertising. Was not this good business judgment?

The work then proceeded. The stone from the old wrecked building was put in place by day's work by the board and the first story completed when it was discovered that this method of procedure was illegal in that the law made it imperative that the work should be done by contract. Here another thirty days was consumed in advertising for the stonework. The Colusa Sand Stone Company agreed to do the work in seventy days, While Rainey & Phillips stipulated to do the work for less money but required much more time in doing the work. The contract was awarded the former. Rainey & Phillips brought an injunction suit to enjoin the board from awarding the contract. At this juncture all bids were rejected and the clerk was instructed to readvertise He was told to insert in the advertisement that the work must be done in seventy days. It will be seen that another thirty days time had to be consumed. Philips & Rainey were again the lowest bidders and agreeing to file a special bond to complete the contract in seventy days the firm was given the work. Now the work on the building is progressing rapidly. In brief this is the history of the new courthouse building. It would seem to any fairminded man that the supervisors acted throughout the proceedings in the interest of the taxpayers and did as any good business man would do.

Has Richard a Grievance?

The Leader in its last issue takes a fling at J. H. Coleman and says he was a failure as chairman. This is surprising as it is the consensus opinion of the people of the county that Mr. Coleman has made the best chairman the county ever had. He has been just, courteous and firm as chairman and we have never heard a complaint against him. We believe the Leader has a prsonal grievance and desires to vent his spleen.

WE DO JOB PRINTING AND DO IT QUICK

ROYAL WORCESTER and BONTON CORSETS have stood pre-eminent for half a century as the leading corsets of the world for style, fit, quality, durability and and workmanship, and this season's models are a triumph in the art of corset making. Every corset virtue is exemplied in Royal Worcester and Bon Bon Corsets, the result of exhaustive and continual study of the ever-changing fashions.

The new designs embody exquisite style and gracefulness, conforming strictly with the present dress requirements, and impart that individuality and correctness of figure so much sought for by discriminating women.

REDFERN WHALEBONE CORSETS—The Standard of Corset Fashion—The Foundation of a Perfect-Fitting Gown.

The new fashions are known as Directoire, and in this mode are many ideas, all of which require careful corsetting.

Through their cut and trimming mode current fashions should convey the impression of unbroken lines. The figure foundation required for accenting this new effect must not exaggerate the natural curves of the waist and hips, but only slightly define the waist and scientifically reduce the hips and abdomen, so that the whole figure is given the appearance of NATURAL SLIMNESS. Redfern Models produce this truth.

Rubber Button Hose Supporters are attached to these models.

$3 to $15 per pair according to materials.

ROYAL WORCESTER CORSET—SStyle 592

Is the Grand Dowager model for the full stout figure. Has medium full bust, medium back, long front and hip, and is especially adapted to those requiring strong restraint of superfluous flesh. Double boned throughout. Made from Coutille in white and drab.

Style 419

Is a very recent model for the long waist figure. Has medium high bust, while the corset skirt is of extreme length over the hips and back. A smooth, round waist and flat abdomen is the result of wearing this stylish model. Made from light-weight white Batiste.

Sizes 18 to 30. PRICE, $1.00

Style 531

A charming new model, designed especially for the petite figure. It has medium bust and flat front. The feature of this corset is the long, flat Princess hip, producing lines of exquisite shapeliness and grace. Made from white Batiste.

Sizes 18 to 26. PRICE, $1.50

Building and Loan Association.

In another column of this issue will be found the semi-annual report of the San Mateo County Building and Loan Association. We direct the attention of the readers there to, as the showing made is a most excellent one and should be a source of gratification for every member of the community, proving as it does, the thrift of our citizens in making such large monthly savings among so small a population. The intelligent management which can make a showing of having earned and distributed to the shareholders an interest upon denosits of eight per cent compound semi-annually is worthy of commendation while the large number of new residences being erected by its members throughout the country is of great benefit to all. Long may it prosper and may its efficiency increase.

Refuse to Pay for Street Work.

The residents of Roosevelt avenue nave entered a refusal to pay the cost of macadamizing that thoroughfare. The improvement was made under contract in 1907 under the ten-year bond plan by A. Hess. County Teachers, Take Notice

A notice of the Teachers' Institute of San Mateo County which will convene this year jointly with the California Teachers' Association, was mailed to all of the teachers of the public schools of the county by County Superintendent Cloud last week.

An extensive preparation has been made for this occasion, numbers of the most prominent educators of the coast and also several from the East having been engaged to address the convention. The institute has been fixed this year to begin on December 28, and lasting four days, thus not conflicting with the Christmas holiday as it did last year.

The announcement sent out by the County Superintendent of Schools is given below:

"In accordance with Section 1543. (Sub. 6), 1560, 1562 and 1563 of the code, the Teachers' Institution of San Mateo county for the school year ending June 30, 1909, is hereby called to "unite in a joint institute" with other county instiuttes and with the California Teachers Association, in San Jose, California, commencing Monday, December 28, 1908, and ending Thursday at noon, December 31, 1908.

"Teachers will assemble at the High School on Monday, Decemmber 28, at 1:30 p. m.

"Sickness so great that a teacher cannot attend school if it were in session is a valid excuse for absence from institute. A doctor's certificate is good evidence of such sickness.

"Teachers who fail to attend institute regularly are not entitled to pay for same, even if excused by the County bBoard.

"Teachers who do attend Institute are entitled to their pay whether school is in session or not "Trustees will be notified of attendance of teachers at institute.

"Certificates of membership in the California Teachers' Association may be had at the office of the County Superintendent of Schools Price $1.00

Improvements at Wellesley Park

The nice class of residence now going up in Wellesley Park are forcing that tract to the front very rapidly. C. G. Landscheit and Dr. P. H. Kroeck have already moved into their respective homes, while Mr. Martens expects to move into his in about ten days.

The Redwood City Realty Company is to be congratulated upon the manner in which they are going ahead with the improvements promised, and in addition have installed 5,000 feet of gas pipe, so that at this time gas for lighting and cooking purposes is available.

The macadamizing under the direction of Surveyor Neuman is going along as rapidly as possible under existing weather conditions, and which, when done, will present as fine looking streets as any on the peninsula.

When the electric cars stop in front of Wellesley Park when the railroad company cuts the street along the front, which they are under contract to to do, and the Realty Company is through with their improvements and the crescent is fixed up into an attractive park, Redwood City will boast an addition which will be a credit to it, and one that will compare favorably with any between San Francisco and Palo Alto.

The following sales have been made:—Seven lots to W. H. Bagge and J. W. Farnsworth, two prominent San Franciscans who will build in the spring, R. W. Barrett, lot 67 in the old subdivision, L. A. PICKED UP BY REPORTERS

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO HAS A CLEANING-UP DAY

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4.—The board passed an ordinance compelling all property owners to put garbage, waste paper and other refuse in receptacles. The ordinance is a popular one and meets with the approbation of all.

Sunday was a busy day for the residents of South San Francisco as that day was selected for a grand cleaning up day. The two improvement clubs of that city have been busy for over a week prefecting the plans and appointing committees. Quite a handsome sum of money was collected to carry on the work, the business men subscribing loyally to the cause. Saturday was tag day, and the school children succeeded in collecting quite an additional sum for the good work.

Wagons and horses were donated for the hauling off of the trash and nearly evry resident of that section was out early in the morning cleaning the filth from the streets and vacant lots. The city was divided into eight districts and each of these districts was well looked after by committees. The busy workers were treated to a good substantial hot lunch at noon, the dinners being prepared by the good ladies of the town.

The joint committee adopted a resolution that all members of both clubs shall attend the meeting of and urge that a garbage ordinance be adopted, and one providing that only metal receptacles shall be used to put garbage in.

The Enterprise of South San Francisco says: "The city has started on a new era and it is hoped that a sufficient number of citizens will be out Monday and make South San Francisco a city to be proud of."

Woodside Chips

WOODSIDE, December 4. — Henry Holmes spent the week end at his home here.

Oran Daves has bought the Chapette place in Portola and will move from Woodside to reside there where he will conduct the saloon.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson of San Francisco were in Woodside Sunday looking over their property, and as soon as the weather will permit will erect a home on their place.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Hansen are visiting their friend, Mrs. Tuttle here.

Dr. J. Keeme of San Francisco spent Saturday and Sunday at the Woodside hotel.

Edgar Batchelder of Millbrae and formerly superintendent of the Spring Valley Lake at Portola and now in charge of the company's lake at Millbrae was quietly married Thursday to Miss Edna Hillebrand of this place. Mr. Batchelder is one of the substantial men of the county and is highly respected by all who knew him. He is popular here where he has resided for some years before going to Millbrae. The bride has a wide acquaintance and is well liked by all in the community in which she is so well known. The happy coule will reside in Millbrae.

Mr. and Mrs, Charles K. McIntosh are established in a pretty home on Pacific avenue near Presidio, San Francisco, but will return in the early spring to their country home near Woodside.

Mr. DeSabla, who owns a ten-acre tract at Woodside, is creating two ponds or reservoirs, which are to be used as "frog farms". He anticipates that he can produce a sufficient number of these musical batrachians to supply the San Francisco market. Mr. De Sabla has made many improvements on his place and has vineyards and orchards and a profusion of flowers.

Pescadero Pebbles

PESCADERO, December 4. — Last week we made a misprint in our item of W. E. Steele—it was 320 sacks of barley from eight acres of land instead of eighty acres.

W. E. Steele has a new automobile just from the East, it can run 60 miles an hour and is a beauty.

G. H. Steele has bought a new running car. He will not have to carry any whip now days.

A. N. Crandell, at the Gazos creek ranch, is making some of the best butter on the coast. We know it is good because we are using it. It brings the top price in Santa Cruz. Keep on making Andy.

John Manley is shipping apples as fast as he can haul them from his place above the White House.

F. A. Woodman has sixteen head of horses plowing on the Pigion Point ranch. He says he wants to get 10,000 sacks of black oats the coming year to sell for seed. I hope you will old boy.

J. Cayers has over 300 acres of land in grain and it looks fine. Stick to it Jack.

Bert Reese and Mr. Corey are putting in about 600 acres to oats on the Pebble Beach ranch this winter. They will show them how to make the grain grow.

Mr. Waters left Pigion Point and has gone to Point Montara as first assistant and Mr. Lindley is back at PigeonPoint.

George Nicoles left on the San Mateo stage Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Dr. Blackburn left last Saturday for San Francisco to meet the doctor, they will be home in a few days. The doctor, we hear, will cover the road with rock from Pescadero to Pigion Point. We are thankful as the sand is bad down that way.

J. V. Nunes is plowing with four teams as fast as he can, and thinks he will have another big yield as he had last year. Joe is a good farmer.

We are glad to hear that W. H. Moore has leased a ranch of L. Coburn and going to farming again. Now Walter stay with it, a rolling stone gathers no moss.

L. Chandler raised 3000 sacks of potatoes from twenty acres of land. Who said good crops. Some people know how to farm.

Uncle John McCormick raised about six tons of cow pumpking on a lot 100 feet square on Irish Row. They make good milk.

J. C. Willamson has been laying in a stock of groceries for winter, he has four big loads a week coming for the past month.

The Pescadero creamery shut down for the season on December 1st. They cannot get enough milk at present to keep running.

Mrs. James Reed, we are glad to say, is getting along nicely, and on the road to recovery under Dr. Thompson's care.

Loren Coburn has been in San Francisco since last Friday getting material to rebuild his wire cable at Pigeon Point that was burned down some time ago. He anticipates a large traffic by way of the Point and the steamer this coming spring. As there will be two saw mills running up the Gazos creek, and they will want to ship their lumber and that will help Pescadero with all the men working up there, about 200 of them—talk about booms. L. Coburn, U. R. allright. Let the good work go on.

Judge McCormick keeps his reputation up for 30 days or $30. Tuesday the Judge held court for a few minutes.

The Times-Gazette comes by mail every Saturday for $2.50 per year. Subscribe and find out what's doing in your county.

BATTLE OF THE NILE.

Where "the Boy Stood on the Burning Deck."

CASABIANCA AND HIS FATE.

The Facts About the Little Hero of Mrs. Hemans' Famous Poem, His Father and the Tragedy of the Doomed French Flagship, the Orient.

That was a lucky child who in the latter part of the last century escaped the ordeal of standing up before a circle of relatives and friends—outwardly enthusiastic and admiring, inwardly often greatly bored—to repeat those well known if somewhat inaccurate lines that tell us how "the boy stood on the burning deck." Whether, nine times out of ten, the infant reciter or, for that matter, any of the members of the applauding family circle could have given the date and place of the occurrence may be doubtful. The forty lines of Mrs. Hemans gave them all the history that they craved, and when the parrot-like performance closed with "faithful heart" a sentimental maiden aunt would sigh, a liberal uncle bestow largesse to the extent of half a crown, and that was all.

It was in 1798 that young Casabianca, the ten-year-old son of the commodore of the French flagship Orient, stood amid the awful devastation of the battle of the Nile. Bonaparte had himself sailed in the ill fated Orient from Toulon in the previous May, taking with him a good stock of burgundy and also that famous "camp library" of cabinet editions, including forty volumes of English novels, in which the Bible and the Koran were classed under the head of "politics." More important still for those who love the picturesque details of history and great men, he was accompanied by his then private secretary, Louis Antoine Fauvelet de Bourrienne, from whose always entertaining if not invariably accurate pen we have a capital account of the voyage to Egypt.

Much of the time was passed by Napoleon lying in his berth while Bourrienne read to him and in promoting discussions on various questions among the scientific and other distinguished men who accompanied the expedition. The flagship carried a population of more than 2,000 souls, and the cry of "Man overboard!" was not infrequent. On these occasions Bonaparte displayed a side of his character to which full justice is not always done. Bourrienne describes his agitation till a rescue was effected as extreme. On one occasion a false alarm was raised during the darkness of night, and the supposed "man" proved to be the quarter of a bullock which had dropped from the rigging, but Napoleon rewarded the rescuers even more liberally than usual, pointing out that their exertion had been for what they believed a human life.

The fleet arrived off the coast of Africa on July 1, and here Bourrienne and his "Memoirs" leave the squadron to accompany the army and his chief on land. Brueys, the French admiral, had during the voyage expressed forebodings as to the result of an encounter with the British fleet. Nelson, who sailed from Syracuse on July 25, was confident, but well knew the price he might be called upon to pay. When Captain Berry said, "If we succeed, what will the world say?" Nelson replied: "There is no if in the case. That we shall succeed is certain. Who may live to tell the story is a very different question." For himself he made that famous anticipation, "A peerage or Westminster abbey."

The battle began at 6:30 o'clock, half an hour before nightfall. Nelson, on board the Vanguard, flew his colors in six places lest they should be shot away. In a few minutes after the ship had gone into action the crews of the first six guns were swept away by the terrible fire of the French fleet, and twice again during the fight were fresh crews called for. The shot which struck Nelson on the head tore from his forehead a piece of skin which, falling over his one useful eye, rendered him for the time being totally blind. Carried to the cockpit, he insisted on taking his proper turn among the wounded for the surgeon's attention. Soon after 9 o'clock at night, while he was still below, a cry arose that the Orient was on fire. Unaided and unnoticed in the confusion, Nelson made his way up, and presently from the quarterdeck his voice was heard shouting orders that the boats should be lowered to go to the assistance of the Orient's crew.

The doomed French flagship had but just been painted, and quantities of oil and inflammable material littered her deck. Brueys, the admiral, was dead, but Louis Casabianca and his little son were still on deck. At 10 o'clock the ship blew up. "There came a burst of thunder sound," and, although the commodore was not at the time living "unconscious of his son," as the poetess has it, for both were seen clinging to a floating mast after the explosion, neither father nor son was among the seventy members of the crew who were saved by the English boats.

From the mainmast and ironwork of the Orient Captain Hallowell of the Swiftsure had a coffin made, which "memento mori" he presented to the admiral that he might at the close of his career of glory be buried in one of his own trophies. Nelson received this offering in the spirit of the giver and even kept it set up on end in his cabin till the remonstrance of his favorite servant brought about its banishment.—London Globe.

GENESIS OF FEAR.

Gray Cells of Our Brains Stamped With Ancient Terrors.

The average man would sooner face a 200 pound human antagonist than a fifty pound dog which he could choke to death in three minutes. I have seen a charging ram scatter half a dozen men, any one of whom could have mastered the brute in a moment, and not one of whom was in ordinary matters a coward. There are instances on record of men who with their bare hands have held and baffled an ugly bull, but it was only the pressure of grim necessity that taught them their powers. Put a man against an animal and the man looks around for weapons or support, whether he needs them or not. There was a time when he did.

For man, today the most lordly of animals, was once well nigh the most humble of them all. He has come up out of a state in which fear was the normal condition of existence—fear of violence, of the dark that gave opportunity for violence, fear of falling, of animals, of being alone. And into the plastic gray cells of our brains are stamped these ancient terrors, a living record of the upward climb of man.

The baby shows this record most clearly. In him the prints of heredity are not yet overlaid by the tracks of use and custom, and therefore in him we may most easily read our past history. He is our ancestor as truly as he is our reincarnation, and his every shrinking gesture and frightened cry are chronicles of the younger world, tales of the age of fear.

They tell of the days when man was not the master of the earth nor even a highly considered citizen of the same, but a runaway subject of the meat eating monarchs, whose scepter was tooth and claw, a humble plebeian in the presence of the horned and hoofed aristocrats of woods and fields. They speak of the nights when our hairy sires crouched in the forks of trees and whimpered softly at the dark—whimpered because the dark held so many enemies, whimpered softly lest those enemies should hear

Unruffled.

Master—Mary, I wish you would be more careful. I'm sorry to hear my wife has to scold you so often. Mary—Oh, it's all right, sir. I seldom takes any notice of her.—London Telegraph.

A MENTAL FRENZY.

Some of the Things a Man Saw in Delirium Tremens.

Charles Roman gives a record of his own experiences as a victim of delirium tremens. It is a remarkable psychological document, comparing favorably in interest and as a piece of writing with De Quincey's "Confessions of an Opium Eater." Following is a brief extract which gives some suggestions of the things the patient saw:

"Up to this point the zoological visitations had been intermittent. During the next few days, however, I saw all that I could stand. I saw such prehistoric creatures as exist nowhere except in museums. I saw rats as they marched past my door or flew through my windows or floated in my tub. Elephants strode in and out with lumbering steps and swaying trunks. At times they seated themselves and taunted me with their thunderous bellows or their ear splitting screeches. They flaunted their snouts high in the air and guffawed. Monkeys jumped from limb to limb in the trees outside my room. Snakes of all colors, of all descriptions, reptiles with fantastic figures upon their backs and with eyes of sapphire or ruby or of milk white marble, wriggled upon the floor or crept in or out of heretofore unseen crevices in the walls and dropped into the water in my tub. They swam around and around me, squirming under me, with their tongues darting in and out with ferocious activity. Giraffes craned their necks around the doorways or through the windows, chickens roosted over my head and cackled, dogs and wolves ran around the room barking and snapping, pigeons flew from one corner to another and cooed. Lions I heard roaring, and tigers I saw while they opened their mouths, like huge cats, in silent, angry disapproval, licking their whiskers and wetting their paws softly and daintily—this and far more.

"I saw crocodiles in droves. Fat, scaly, glistening beasts they were, with frothy, foaming jaws, long, sweeping tails, crouching upon or creeping along the foot of my bathtub or my bed and grinding their yellow teeth in gluttonous anger as they contemplated me, their prey. I saw the reeking, slippery body of a crocodile slide into the water of my tub. Then as I shrank in breathless horror to escape I saw his greedy, filmy eyes arise to the surface, with his cold, foul chin flush with mine. His icy beak touched my cheek. The hot vapor from his lungs seared my flesh. I turned as cold as ice and trembled like a leaf in a storm."—American Magazine.

Constant Squeezing.

"Now, Algernon," said Miss Fussanfeather, as she was tightly held in the embrace of her fiance, "they tell me that men get tired of squeezing after they are married. Will you promise me not to give it up after we are man and wife?"

"Oh, I assure you it is not necessary to make any such promises," replied the young man. "I guarantee you'll have all the squeezing you want to do to get along on $7 a week."—Exchange.
